Key features Record screen Capture windows (capture existing windows) Cursor captured too Hotkey control Easy customizable and easy of use Compatible with most of the video formats View settings Enables custom watermarks Fast Capability to record audio Unlimited compressing ratio (unlimited compressing) Self-contained Requirements Windows XP/Vista/7/8 Intel Core 2 Duo processor with 64 MB RAM 60 MB of free space Other The program employs watermarking feature but if you want to use it you have to use a separate, in my opinion not paid, app for that. Wandrox OpenSource Screen Recorder 05-28-2011, 08:55 AM The program employs watermarking feature but if you want to use it you have to use a separate, in my opinion not paid, app for that. Watchdog 05-28-2011, 02:25 PM It may not cost anything but it requires you to create the logo from scratch and make it separately. The program employs watermarking feature but if you want to use it you have to use a separate, in my opinion not paid, app for that. I'm talking about the watermarking here. Some users here might be also using a separate app for that. Raros 05-28-2011, 03:53 PM I'm talking about the watermarking here. Some users here might be also using a separate app for that. Some of us are doing that because we don't want to get any copyright problems. The Mac OSX is well accepted by the law. Raros 05-28-2011, 04:47 PM It may not cost anything but it requires you to create the logo from scratch and make it separately. Yes it requires the user to do it manually and without a paid program. jdbil 06-01-2011, 06:49 AM it's not a paid program, it's opensource. it will ask for watermarking. for some software it's a program for watermarking and for some it's a logo maker. it doesn't matter if you are a paid user or not. who doesn't have the money to pay for it. jdbil 06-01-2011, b7e8fdf5c8

Reason and Relevance I've only ever been taught the following two versions of the Cargo Cult science-fiction story: If it looks like a duck and walks like a duck, and quacks like a duck, then you can be pretty sure it's a duck. If it looks like a duck, and walks like a duck, and quacks like a duck, then you can be pretty sure it's a duck. The first version is more dogmatic, and the second version goes a step further, meaning you don't even have to be 100% sure of your hypothesis. Only 50% sure. The dogmatic version leads to a fun discussion about how many different types of duck there are, while the one where you're only 50% sure leads to philosophy more than science. Yeah, that's why you need science, to prove the first version's "duckness" claim wrong. It sounds more satisfying to be a dick about it and claim that the first version of the story is completely bullshit and people should just accept that $2+2=4$. But science will have a way to say that you're wrong and $2+2=5$, and maybe you'll wake up the next day and find out your wife of 36 years has left you, and also science will be able to perform small miracles that would probably make your dick shrivel into a tiny peanut that you hold in your hand, and you'll probably laugh. 5th, which they're going to want you to hold for a while. We're living the Star Trek Childhood. "Good job!", "Glad you got all the bad guys!", "Now you can go to the White House!" "Nope! Go to the Station, the White House is only
