ZYTERNION is a sci-fi roguelike/platformer - and a game about jumping and fighting giant robots on a bizarre and hostile alien planet. Swarm together in tiny pods and try to survive on the hostile, procedurally-generated planet. Fight, die, and fall back to the ship to start your quest all over again! Take your robot, armed with lasers and missiles, and fight for survival against other robots, hordes of creatures and the elements. Zyternion is a 48-hour adventure that takes place entirely within the confines of the eponymous ship. Using the ship's equipment you can jump around, climb ladders, smash through floors, destroy the ship and get out! Video: Features: An Introduction UFO in the Trees Anarchy Escape the galaxy Bombs Zyternion is about risk, that's what these days games are all about. Players have to take risks if they want to progress and to have fun. This means, that you can die in every way possible: the Zypets can kill you at will or you can be killed by the wind, by falling into a void, by machinegun bullets, by the hand of the player, by fire, or even by the bombs which we will learn about in a second. Each die, each bullet, makes a slightly different reality and that can decide if you are going to live or die. If this sounds complicated, I can assure you that it's not. But it's the way Zyternion is built: You go into a new level and your ship is depleted, so you have to finish all your assignments. In the meantime, new random elements can drop out of the sky and can cause fire and explosions, traps and tasks, and at the same time, fights with other robots. The latest version of the game also features a random level generator, which generates environments that change each time you play. What more can we tell you? Well, we will have some "heroes" and they are to be found in the central hub area of the ship. Using a special action set, you can assemble and disassemble and assemble the Zypets to access your ship as other heroes do. This action set gives you a direct access to the main part of the ship: What goes on the outside, is linked to what goes on the inside. You c9d1549cdd

Historical re-discovery The earliest discovery of the city's ruins was made by a German archaeological team led by Eduard Tschopp in 1883. The current re-discovery of the city took place in the 1950s, under the direction of the Bulgarian geologist Boiko Ivanov, who excavated and restored the city's ruins at the settlement of Sredni Stup. On January 6, 1958, Tschopp described the city in his notes, stating that the earliest parts of the site were erected around the seventh to the sixth millennium B.C. In the 1970s, another team of archaeologists from Sofia re-discovered the city and identified its site, and also unearthed the rich finds of its necropolis. Archaeological findings The excavators of Balbek identified several important archaeological findings of the city, and the city's plan was described: The settlement was fortified with the usual stone and earth bulwarks around its circumference.
