smartphone/smart device manager " The value of safety netting: a case study from Europe. Existing literature tends to focus on value-generating activities as compared to value-capturing activities and to explain cross-national variation in support for safety netting. This paper describes a process whereby safety netting is discussed and accepted by the European Union and discusses the consequences of this decision for Europe. It highlights the importance of using qualitative methods that do not assume a homogenous use of European Union support for safety netting across regions.Q: Radon transform and Gaussian white noise I am wondering whether if a function
