Dead Island (PC) 100% Working Fix Crack RePack

we pretty much had to rename the whole thing. i explained to my manager that this is because we are going to allow more than 1 background and render thread and that we need to write a multithreaded application. i also told him that there were 2 problems we could address right away, and the rest would be fixed later. so i went to the first one, the memory corruption. the first issue was the crash, and it was due to a memory corruption. if we are going to use a serial or sequential queue which relies on dynamic memory allocation, we must ensure that the data we put into it is initialized to all 0s. when we do a pointer swap (ex: _p_ = &_p_), it is almost impossible to write an easy-to-understand and easy-to-maintain code. we had more and more and more and more of our variables as we added more and more and more and more and more, which would have been better as a nested for-loop or while-loop. now that we have an error we want to eliminate, we need to do some refactoring. i told my manager that we are going to need to make a new structure named squeue which is able to serve as a queue, priority queue, or stack. we are going to use it as a stack, but our linked list implementation is flawed. so i sketched out a sketch on a post-it note. the list node contains a pointer to the next item in the list, a key, and a variable. our new structure is just a simple struct with a variable and a pointer to the next item. on a more practical level, it will be interesting to see how the various ceremonies and commemorations pan out. ive only been to one so far and, even so, it was a fairly mixed bag. the city council decided to hold a very quick ceremony on easter monday in the rotunda in rathfarnham (the closest we get to a cork city centre) for the commemorations of 1916, but the turnout was embarrassingly small; there were 6 or 7 people there. and the biggest point was missing, which was the centenary of the rising and the war of independence of 1919-1921. the commemoration of the 1916 easter rising in cork was very good, with the exception that many of the speakers were the same people who spoke at the commemoration of the war of independence. and there were numerous other speakers and reps from various groups. in fact, i pretty much agree with one of the responses someone else made at the 1916 easter rising commemoration, that there should be a clear distinction between commemorations of events that lead up to 1916 and events that continued from 1916. that was, imo, a large part of the problem with 1916, that the celebrations largely focussed on it, rather than taking a broader view of the period. so 1916 was treated more as a standalone event and the state/national narrative of the period that went on from 1916 was ignored.
