PC-DMIS 2013 also includes a new View Report section of the Dimensioning Tool window. This enables the user to create a report as he/she takes measurements. As each datum is assigned, dimensional information such as top/bottom/left/right and datum settings can be saved to the Report Window for later use. The user can select from a standard report type or a number of different elements to include in the report. The Incident and Quality Control functions are the enhanced Multi-Operator Environment (MOE) suite of tools.

Incidents, Quality Control information, change requests, multi-operator workstations and reporting are all part of the same system that supports all the variations of the Wilcox PC-DMIS Dimensional Software. The expanded Menu Bar will provide the user with greater functionality. After setting the stage, Wilcox and Wilcox Associates continue their commitment to the metrology software market by supporting the software through implementation and training. For example, Wilcox and Wilcox Associates have implemented the software's Level 2 interface for over 7,000 current PC-DMIS users. The support program for the software is comprehensive. Customers can use the help desk to contact Wilcox Associates at any time, to access a toll free number, or go directly to the Wilcox website. All inquiries regarding training, planning and problems are answered during normal business hours. Members of the Wilcox Associates team are available to assist the program and the customers. PC-DMIS Level 2 offers seamless interaction with other industry standard software packages. Users can leverage the two-way measurement communication with other manufacturers' software and use the information generated by other software package in the analysis of data generated by PC-DMIS Level 2.
