I want to put the form on the top of the page and then if the user clicks on a button, the content of the form is displayed. I am using Rails 3 and i would like to know what is the most common way to achieve this. Should i use just ? Is there a library out there that make it simple? Thanks A: Assuming that you have the following controllers: app/controllers/users_controller.rb class UsersController New User app/views/posts/new.html.erb New Post The user view should be placed in the app/views/users folder and the posts view in app/views/posts. As you have not posted any code, I have not added any action attributes, but they should be present. To invoke the views above with a form in the new
