For example, bricks formed of concrete or clay are commonly covered with a coating of natural or artificial stucco in order to improve weather resistance of the bricks. Such coating can have a thin, monolithic film covering the entire brick, but more often is in the form of a single layer or a plurality of layers. In addition to inhibiting water absorption by the brick, such coatings can also reduce staining of the brick by providing a barrier against ultraviolet rays from the sun. Also, paint previously applied to the brick is protected against erosion by the weathering coating. However
